

Precise Writing

There is a heated debate about how we should reward our employees, students, and children. One side of the debate is through intrinsic rewards, such as praise. The other side of debate is through extrinsic rewards, such as money. I for one believe that we should use intrinsic and extrinsic rewards complimentary of each other when it comes to using the most effective method of rewards. Both intrinsic and extrinsic rewards have some drawbacks, but they also offer some great incentives; intrinsic rewards at last longer, and give sense of self-accomplishment, extrinsic rewards offer a great short-term incentive, but this eventually decreases.
