Q No 1)

Every person on the Earth wants to remain happy. It is a feeling which everyone wants in his life but it cannot be achieved through material wealth, ~~meaning~~ having enough to live comfortably, like the Happy Index Report 2012 reflects. This is a strong evidence that material wealth does not guaranty happiness.

Q No 2)

A Voluntary simplicity means people should must know the difference between needs and desires. When ~~one~~ a person uses this philosophy, it becomes a movement as everyone uses his/ ~~others~~ ^{what} intellect, ~~that~~ ^{one} ~~he~~/she needs and desires.

Q No 3)

In growing consumerism, everyone wants more and more. Their quest to acquire more ~~and more~~ things depletes the useful resources and leave nothing for next generations. In this way, consumerism is a threat to the resources for future generations.

Q No 5)

The challenges to it, ^{to what???} are that people's unwillingness to differentiate between needs and desires, cultural background and climate.

Qts When people will distinguish and maintain a balance between them, it will save the resources and reducing the environmental degradation.
