Title :

Money : A Secondary Option of Intellectual

A civilized man never prioritizes money in his life, over any other thing. All healthy minded people like the process of earning money not the money itself. For example a soldier's main mission used to be winning a battle; Clergyman preach without the instinct of reward from people; doctors fight for their patients' health, in all these professions people who are well educated; their priority would be to serve humanily and not their money as fee or pay.
