

Subheading: Women can play their vital role in promoting education

Women can play their vital role in promoting education across the world. The reason is that like men, they, too, are intelligent, and they can perform well in rising education levels. In the past, women, while using their potential, have contributed a lot in promoting education in the world. For example, first schools were set up by mother of Muslims Ayesha Binte Abu Bakr (Aliya Anjum, 'Aurat March', March 2023). In a nutshell, there are no two opinions that women have the ability to increase the literacy rate among people in the world.
