The bad that disturbs this world is due to superactive people who always remain busy like devil. The world is disordered, not because of laziness but due to energy which is misdirected. It is deficient of passive virtues like compassion and kindness. History also depicts such examples as people like journalists, generals and state nobels; if they would be less active than they were, the world would be in better condition than it is now. Even in present time in Europe, if some of the politicians and religious leaders, who always remain busy, become less active, their laziness will add ^{more} good to the world. In addition, they will get a chance to take a pause and get refresh for further

Precis 2016 (Another Perspective)

The evil in the world is due to the mismanagement of people's activities.

Devil is the most busy creature in the dispersion of laziness and evil without wasting even a second and his community helps him in this regard.

People waste their time in doing the wrong things. The writer explained about the notion who utilized his spare time by organizing peace conferences. The officials took Treaty of Versailles in recreational environment instead of a burden. European politicians considered idleness as a crime. Some people organized religious conferences but their energies were misguided and they used it in the amusing activities like dancing girls, club, and instead to resolve the civil contractions
