

Free education is a necessity. The reason is that the inflation has been reached above 30 percent in past few months. A large proportion of the population is already living hand to mouth. The people do not have enough resources to pay a huge amount of fee and educate their children.

According to a report, poverty is expected to reach 37.2% in 2023.

Thus, providing free education will be a big relief for the poor people of the country.

Global warming is the result of human activities. The major causes of global warming include deforestation, burning fossils and industrial revolution. As a result of such activities, the temperature of Earth, ocean and land surfaces is increasing continuously.

Moreover, the increasing temperature leads to alarming situations like shrinking glaciers, floods and health problems.

According to German Watch Institute, Pakistan has been ranked among top 10 countries affected by global warming. Thus, human activities are the major causes of global warming across the world.

Gender discrimination exists in Pakistan. Women are usually looked in the economic and educational sector. Almost half of the population consists of women which means that they must be considered as the asset of the country. But unfortunately, their status is unsatisfactory. According to a report of Global Gender Gap Index (2018), Pakistan has been placed 148 out of 149 countries, regarding gender equality in the world. Hence, gender inequality is one of the various social issues that Pakistan is facing today.

Flood recovery is need of the hour.

The reason is that more than six months have been passed but still a huge number of people are displaced from their homes. Floods killed more than 1700 people, destroyed homes, crops, infrastructure and displaced millions of people. Moreover, unclean water caused several diseases including diarrhea and malaria. Both children and adults are still suffering. So, in such circumstances, providing homes and basic facilities to flood affectees is essential.
