Jack: Hello, Swarup! Swatting away as usual. Come out, man; shut up your old books, and come and have a game of tennis.

Swarup: I am sorry I cannot do that, Jack. The examination is drawing near, and I want every hour I can get for study.

Jack: Oh! Hang all examinations! I do not worry about mine. What is the use of them, any way?

Swarup: Well, you can't get a degree if you don't pass the examination; and I have set my heart on being a graduate.

Jack: And pray what good will graduation do you? You may get a clerkship in a government office; but that's all, and there are hundreds of fellows who have got their degrees, and are no nearer getting jobs of any sort.

Swarup: That may be so; but I am not studying so much to pass my examination and obtain my degree, as to store my mind with knowledge and develop my intellectual faculties.

Swarp was studying in his room when Jack entered and insisted upon him to shut his books and have a game of tennis. Swarp apologized. The examination was drawing near, and he wanted every hour he could get for study. He could not get a degree if he did not pass the examination. Jack asked him what good the graduation would do to him. There were hundreds of fellows who had got their degrees, and were no nearer getting job of any sort. Swarp answered that he was not studying to pass his examination and obtain his degree, as to store his mind with knowledge and develop his intellectual faculties.
