

Introduction:-

America, also known as the USA emerged as a super power in the aftermath of the Second World War. Russia, also known as the USSR at that time, considered itself a superpower country as well. However, the world order shifted from multipolar to bipolar, with the US and USSR. To become the solo superpower in the world, Cold War started between the US and the USSR in 1947. Resultantly, the USSR got defeated, and the CARs came into existence. Although America has become the solo superpower in the world, it is facing another rival country named China. Thus, the rivalry between China and America started formally in the late 1970s.

Rivalry:

After the independence of China in 1949, the People's Republic of China started its economic growth consistently. As a result, the China emerged as a global economic in the last decades of 20th century. Besides this the America is a superpower in the world, mainly because of its strong economy and its strong and advance military. By seeing the emerging global economy of China, America got feared or feels fear from China in many ways. Although, America has not started a cold war with China till now, they fought against the USSR in the 20th century. So, America started a Campaign against the growing economy of China through other countries. Despite that, China is still focused in its economic growth and avoids wars with others. However, it can be said that America feels fear from china regarding its status of a superpower in the world.
