

Tehreem Javed

Batch : 036.

Date: _____

Is Pakistan ready for digital revolution?

Outline:

01. Introduction

Thesis Statement: The government's vision for a digital Pakistan is substantial. To ensure its success multiple mobile applications have been introduced. Digitization will no doubt cure the existing ills of Pakistan. However, challenges threatening its success must be addressed on war footing and reforms in digital literacy, data privacy and consumer protection laws must be brought to ensure the success of digitization of Pakistan.

02. What is digital revolution? Historical context.

03. Pakistan is ready for digital revolution. (Thesis)

(a) CPEC and its digital benefits.

(b) E-commerce.

(c) Online education in COVID-19.

(d) Bringing youth into financial fold.

(e) Safe city projects.

04. Pakistan is facing many challenges that can potentially hamper Pakistan's move towards digitalization. (Anti-Thesis)

(a) No national policy on government data.

(b) Access to a secure, faster and reliable communication network is a big challenge.

(c) Failure in safe city projects due to lack of funds.

(d) Unavailability and low quality internet services.

(e) Pakistan doesn't have a proper legal framework for the promotion of e-commerce.

05. Although, Pakistan is encountering enormous problems but the desire of Pakistan's youth to swim the tide of digitization. There are numerous benefits of digital revolution. (Synthesis)

(a) Digitization can be a panacea to all ills.

(b) Chinese largest e-commerce market brought Pakistan's daraz.pk.

(c) Promotion of e-commerce can be done through allowing and encouraging new entrants.

Date: _____

- (d) The problem of low quality internet can be fixed through broadband access technologies.
- (e) The existing ICT infrastructure is linking remote areas to mainstream.

06. Conclusion.