

It is ~~not~~ normal if a person strives for making money but certainly that cannot be aim of his life just like having dinner in need but not the sole purpose of life.

A good soldier would be more satisfied in winning a war and not being paid than just being paid. A doctor too would not risk the patient's life to have his fee but would do utmost to save his life without thinking of his fee.

It is not that people do not prioritize money, they do but it follows their real purpose.
