Paragraph-1:-

It is generally believed that the laws of a country and the freedom of people are contrary to each other. Apparently, it does not seem wrong. Each law imposes certain restriction on the citizens.

The more the laws, the more the restrictions are. An individual's freedom remains suppressed because of a lot of restrictions. On the contrary, if the number of laws are less, the citizens enjoy more freedom.

Pakistan is determined to secure peace in Afghanistan because peace in Afghanistan is very important for Pakistan. From historical point of view, both countries are linked together through historical, cultural, and linguistic bonds perspective. These relations are inalienable. Both countries depend on each other and neither can live without in separation. From the very first day, Pakistan's stance has been that a political solution of the Afghan problem should be found and China also supports this. In this context, China has said that the Afghan problem can only be solved through peace dialogues involving Afghan leadership. China and Pakistan should solve this Afghan issue for their strategic what?

Avoid informal words such as doesn't, didn't etc.

in order to become aware of our hidden flaws, it is very important to notice what our enemies say about us. Our friends often praise us because we want them to. ~~and~~ Either, they do not find a fault in us or they just ignore them to make us not feel hurt. On the contrary, our enemy keeps searching for our faults and highlights even a minor thing^{as} a great flaw.

A friend always promotes the goods of a friend but an enemy highlights the flaws. Therefore, we should be more grateful to our enemy because he informs us about our flaws.

When we see from this point of view, an enemy is better than a friend.
