

Miseries Faced by Human

Human development have faced the afflictions faced by nature and misguidance of man. Environment was the threat to man and his survival in harsh weather.

Human had advantages of upright posture and intelligence which made him different and his population increased. Nature knew how to maintain its hegemony through natural calamities. In this age dominance of nature is vanishing due to scientific intelligence of human. Natural calamities still happen but man knows how to tackle them with hard work and intelligence. Man can be free from relationship with nature but not from enormities that man force on each other like war and greed. Fear still influence many lives.