Q:2

Answer:- Introduction

"One is not born to be a woman,
but becomes one."

(Simone de Beauvoir)

Multidisciplinarity of gender studies is a broader aspect. In fact, gender advocates equality among all biological identities that as a result, advocates multiple norms of society. Addressing multiple issues related to gender can also be regarded as multi-disciplinary nature. This shows that multidisciplinary advocates gender justice role.

2- Multidisciplinary nature of gender studies: An overview.

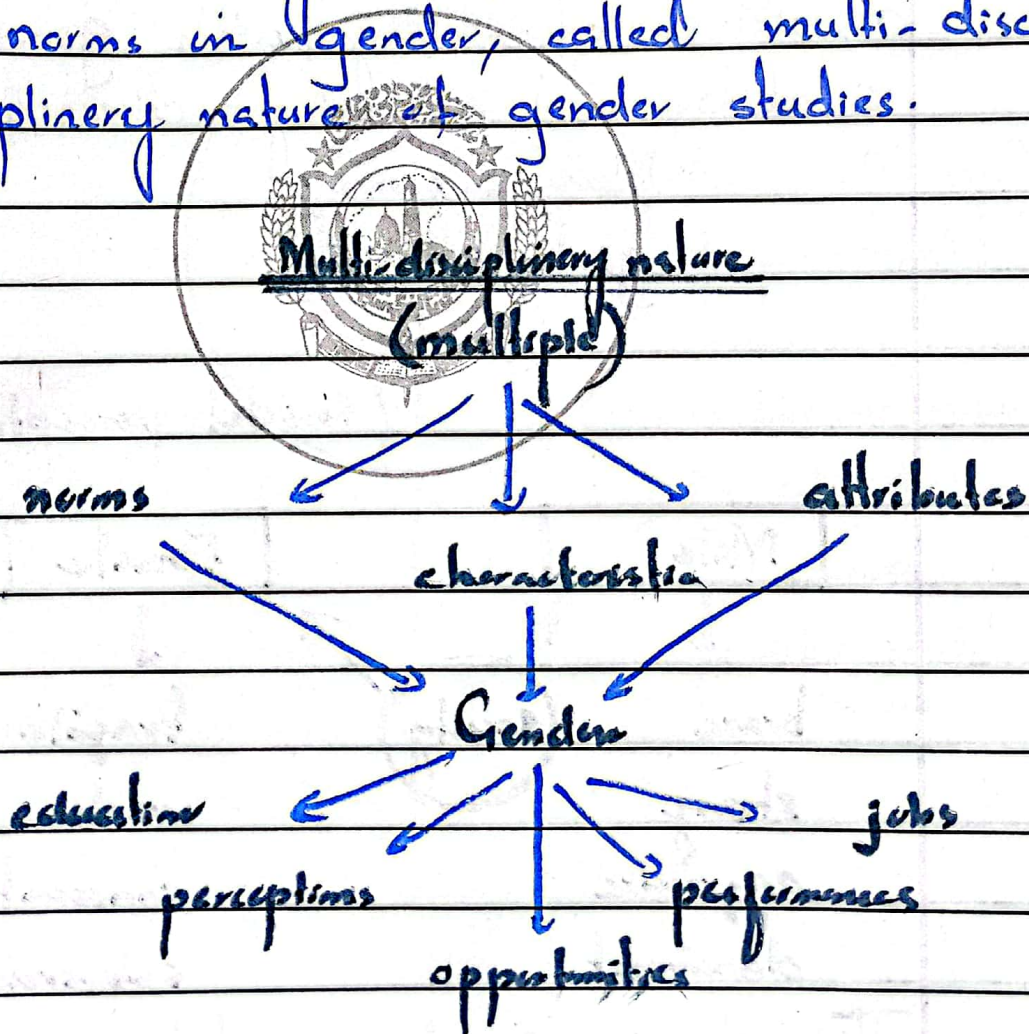

"Multiple attributes and norms associated with gender, known as multi-disciplinary,

(Explanation of Multi-disciplinary nature)

Multi-disciplinary nature means association with several norms.

These norms are associated with gender identity. Thus, multiple societal norms in gender, called multi-disciplinary nature of gender studies.

3- Explanation of multi-disciplinary nature in Gender studies

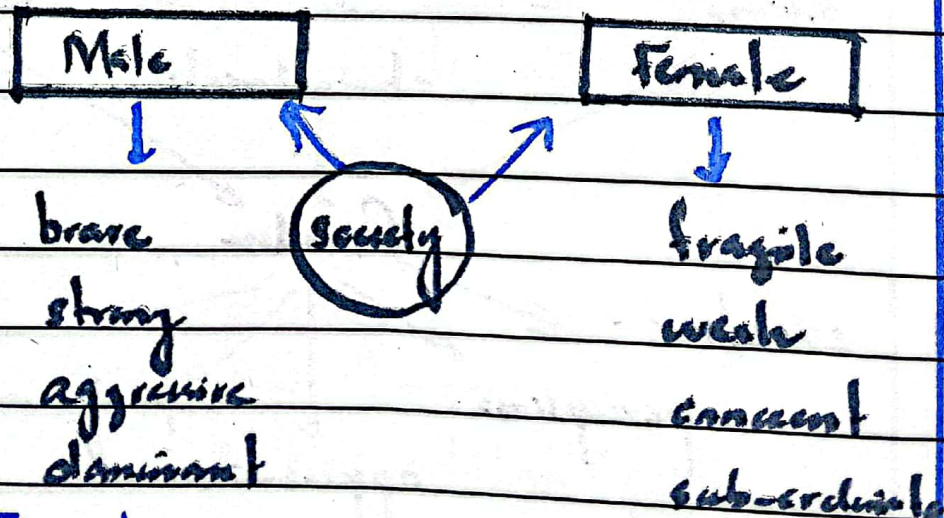

Following is explanation of it:

a) Sociology as multi-disciplinary field

Sociology can be as a multi-disciplinary. In fact, association of society with gender should be not a single directed.

"Man a brave girl a weak gender"

(Societal perception)

This shows gender must be multi-disciplinery

b) Psychology as multi-disciplinary nature
 Further, psychology is also a multi-disciplinary. Psychology of individual should also have multiple equality of gender.

"A man is a safe

driver, while a girl

can be dangerous..."

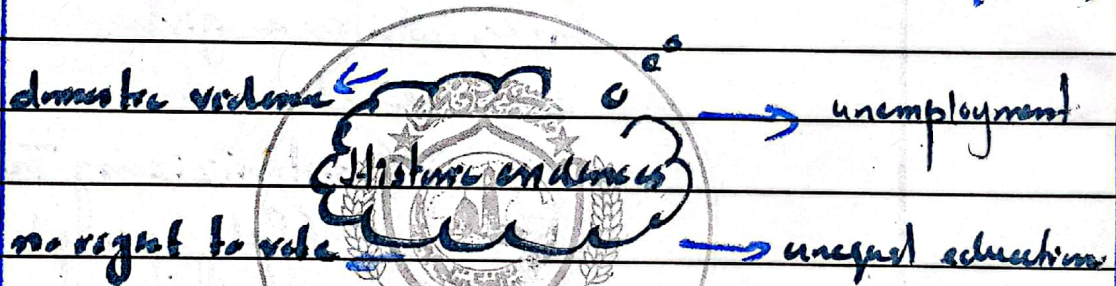

Hence, psychology can also be as a multi-disciplinary.

c) History as an evidence of multi-disciplinary field

Furthermore, history also has a role in multiple norms. Since the past time, gender has multiple issues.

• Women are the most oppressed gender etc

(The New York Times, 1914)

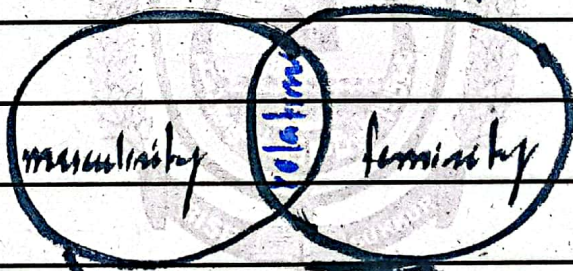

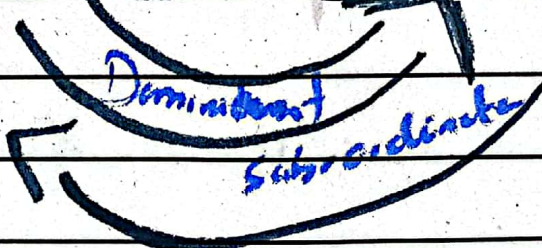

This shows, historically gender is also a multi-disciplinary field.

d) Anthropology as a multi-disciplinary norm
