

Precise Paper 2020: 1

Manto: A Realist:

Manto was a man of action and he was not like Freud, who was the exponent of abstract ideas. In effect, his detractor marked him hypocrite and alleged him with other derogatory words. But he was not distracted and continued on exposing the dark realities of life and the morality of the false purists. He always raised voice for the oppressed community. He further believed that man is not innocent like an angel nor devil and that's why he treated man in balance of these two extremes. And he clearly demarcated between reality and appearance. Which was the reason of his popularity in the lower and middle class. He is placed in the line of great writers and thus he is successful in flourishing his sombre enthusiasm.
