

Is Man Happier Now Than He Was In the Past?

Outline

1. Introduction:

Thesis Statement: Multifaceted complexities of life still prevail and endanger happiness, despite billions of new inventions and discoveries. However, many factors have turned life's hardships and sorrows into ease and happiness, But the happiness index continues to fluctuate and strive.

2. Defining Happiness and Its Cross-Cultural variation

3. Why is Man not happier now than he was in past? (Thesis)

a. Technological ease in social life: Exacerbate lethargic demeanors and lessens work motivation

b. Material happiness: Provide short term pleasure seeking

c. Educational disparity: Vade off happiness from eyes of bright student

d. Fear of insecurity in modern era and new war tactics: Deprive people from happiness

e. Despite industrialization: Food insecurity generate unhappiness

4. Man is Happier Now Than He was in the Past (Antithesis)

- a. Ease in social life: Facilitate people and lessen their hardships
- b. Material happiness: Aids people to make their loved ones happy
- c. Educational facility in every city: Has removed long travel miseries and contributed in smiles on faces
- d. Emergence of Nation state system, borders and boundaries: Alleviate psychological fear of masses
- e. Industrialization: Provided employment opportunities and spread happiness

5. Happiness Index still in Fluctuation and Continuously Striving (Synthesis)

- a. Technological ease in social life: Vanish the real time communication, fades happiness
- b. Material happiness: Is diminishing the social bonds among blood relatives
- c. Lack of opportunities and earning means over shadows the facility of education: Accelerates hopelessness
- d. Raising concept of globalization: Posing risks to sovereignty and national level happiness
- e. Industrialization large contribution in environmental risks: Exacerbates disasters and miseries

DATE: ___/___/___

6. Consistent Humanitarian Crisis and Absence of peace: A Question of lost happiness of Gaza's Innocent soul
7. Accelerating Number of Psychological Patients: Pose a Threat for Happiness to Flourish
8. Conclusion

