

Moreover, another opportunity for tourism in Pakistan is that it offers religious sites to tourists. Such sites include Faisal mosque, Badshahi mosque, Kartarpur.

Pakistan attracts religious tourists from all over the world. Similarly, many sikhs come from India to perform their religious practices. These tourists not only promote soft image of Pakistan but also indicate great potential for tourism in Pakistan. However, it allows Pakistan to gain huge amount of revenue from religious tourism. Pakistan has earned upto $365 million dollars from pilgrims visited to their holy Darbar Sahib in Kartarpur, the final resting place of Sikhism founder. Such revenue gained by Pakistan in 2019 shows potential for ^{religious} tourism in the country. In a nutshell, Pakistan's religious sites are prime destinations for tourism.
