

day/date

Is Taxation a Good Remedy Against Economic Crisis

I. Introduction

Thesis Statement: Taxation is a good remedy against overheating economy as it will help to revive the economy. Some people think that taxation is not a good approach in times of economic downturn. However, their stance is not based on valid arguments.

II. How is Taxation a Good Remedy Against Economic Crisis (Thesis)

- 1- Taxation will lead to more government spending and investment in country
- 2- Not getting taxes will increase the nation's debt
- 3- Taxation will help to create opportunities that will decrease the brain drain of skilled people
- 4- Unemployed people will get jobs and that will contribute to the economy
- 5- Taxation will help to revive the economy into better shape.

III. Why do Some People Think That Taxation is Not a Good Remedy Against Economic Crisis (Anti-thesis)

- 1- People do not have enough money to pay taxes in an overheating economy
- 2- Country needs to think about internal crisis first.

EXCELLENT

- 3- People will be against the government by thinking of taxes as a burden on them.
- 4- People who are working and middle class pay taxes more than rich people
- 5- People's financial situation will become worse till the things get better.

IV- How Taxation will Revive the Overheating Economy (Synthesis)

- 1- If people will not pay taxes, ~~economy~~ ^{economy} will further deteriorate
- 2- Only focusing on short term solutions will not help anyone
- 3- Governments usually tend to provide tax cuts and other benefits to citizens in economic crisis
- 4- States are trying to work on "Tax the Rich" policy
5. The better infrastructure and ^{better} jobs ~~opportunities~~ will help them find better opportunities

V- Conclusion