Role of Soothsayers and Oracles in Ancient Greece

Humans' anxiety and dark lives forced them (Greece) to talk and believe in God, who manages the universe and controls his fate. The soothsayers revealed God's wishes because of understanding the signals. They used to interpret the flashing of lightning, the flying of birds, the direction of fires, and animal conditions during sacrifice. Tarsiers, Calchas, Helenus etc were famous among them. In many cases, prophets conveyed God's message to people. In ancient Greece, each oracle was linked with one god. Apollo was a prominent god who used to convey to man the edicts of Zeus. The oracles of Delphi and Dodona functioned with the assistance of Apollo and Zeus respectively. (112/339)
