"Globalization has spread like storm around the world that promoted happiness, connectivity and created jobs in underdeveloped countries."

(Ban Ki moon) undoubtedly, globalization provided tremendous benefits to developing nations worldwide. For instance: globalization benefited nations in the conduct of projects like CPEC, investment in mining, using air space of developing nations and online education is provided on affordable fee structure. Besides, MNCs like macDoland, kfc, infrastructural investment, opportunities of online earnings also produce benefits to developing countries. moreover, allowing refugees flow, online applications like meta and youtube to earn and sea ports of developing nations have used by the developed nations in exchange provided huge amount of fee. moreover, CNPC of china, online employment, investment in health care, climate fund and social connectivity also promote profound benefits to developing countries. Additionally, free trade with under developing nations, providing scholarships, and technology has been shared with developing countries. Moreover, a case study of BARRICK company shows its profound contribution with developing countries. On the other hand, critics say that the conduct of globalization has not benefited developing nations. The stance is illogical. Thus, the conduct of globalization benefited the developing nations more than developed regions.

Moreover, CPEC project benefited Pakistan more than China. The China Pakistan Economic Corridor provided boost to economy, created jobs and tremendous infrastructures took place. According to Chinese authorities in CPEC phase 1 air ports, highways, bridges and ports are constructed. Moreover, the CPEC Phase one promoted 2.5% boost to Pakistan's economy annually. This project is predicted to create 900,00 jobs till 2030. Thus, developing nations getting benefits from the conduct of globalization.

Further more, developed developed countries invest in the progressing countries' mining sectors which help the developing countries to boost country. Developed countries like china invest in minings like energy, gold, coal and swiver to discover. For instance: China produced agreement with Afghanistan where china will invest millions of dollar to produce oil. This will benefit Afghanistan. Moreover, this conduct benefits developing nations. Hence, the conduct of globalization is blessing for developing countries.

Also, developed nations use the air routes of developing countries consequently provide charges to developing region. This conduct of globalization benefits the progressing nations to earn money for development. The developed nations pay heavy amounts to the owners of region due to providing air space. Moreover, this boost the economy of developing nation. This is the positive conduct. Thus, globalization is a gift for developing countries.

Moreover, online education is promoted by the advanced nations on affordable fee. The process of online education helps the developing countries to improve its literacy. For instance: Harvard university of the USA provides online courses to international students on affordable fee. This assists the developing countries to improve the educational sector. Moreover, developed nations benefited the developing countries education. Hence, globalization is assisting the progressing countries.

Similarly, MNCs help developing countries in the creation of jobs. The MNCs like macDoland and KFC create numerous jobs in the progressing countries. These hotels pay tremendous amounts to the employers. These both contribute

In the developing nations' economies and employment. moreover, this tremendous conduct is become possible due to globalization. Therefore, globalization is blessing.

Apart from this, advanced nations invest in the infrastructure of developing countries. whenever the advanced nations take the contract of developing countries infrastructure. These modern nations bring tremendous technology of construction that make the infrastructure of developing nations on affordable amounts. further, this conduct came possible due to globalization. To sum up, the conduct of globalization boost the developing countries.

Besides, opportunities of online earnings are provided to developing nations. Developed countries produced several ways of earnings to developing nations.

For instance: Bitcoin business, Amazon and other websites give access to progressing regions to earn. This is one of the blessing of globalization. Further more, individuals earn millions of dollars due to these tremendous ways of earnings. In nutshell, globalization has provided tremendous benefits to developing countries.

Additionally, developed nations allowed the refugees of developing nations to enter in developed countries. This is one of the best conduct of globalization. Whenever the refugees go to developed countries these people not only earn money in developed countries but, also send to native homeland. This contributes the economy of developing nations. Moreover, the conduct of globalization help the countries all walks of lives. Therefore, developed countries not benefited from globalization unlike developing.

Moreover, online apps that are produced by advanced nations help the developing countries. For instance, meta, and YouTube are produced by the developed nations. These both apps provide access to people from developing regions to show capability and earn money. Moreover, such conducts of globalization help the developing countries to earn. This is one of the benefits of globalization. Thus, globalization is blessing for developing countries.

Similarly, sea ports are used by the developed nations & in exchange paid huge amounts. Sea ports like CPEC, Suez canal and chabahar are used by the developed nations. Whenever, the advanced countries export or import through these routes provide huge amounts. Moreover, these all ports are existing due to globalization. This conduct contribute the economies of the developing countries. Thus globalization is blessing for developing nations.

Further more China's CNPC in middle East contribute profoundly in the region. CNPC stands for Chinese national petroleum company which operates in middle East. According to OPEC China contributes through its company in Iraq $8 billion per year. moreover, this is one of the benefits of China's globalized conduct. The scenic process of globalization contributes to the progress of developing countries. Thus, it is blessing for middle East too.

Further, online employment is produced by advanced countries. Several foreign countries provide online jobs to mentor data, upload information and produce content writing to every individual. This enables the people of developing countries to benefit from the conduct. This is one of the advantages of connectivity moreover, this process assists millions of people to combat poverty and unemployment. Therefore, ~~or~~ globalization produces employment to encounter poverty.

Similarly, investment in health care and climate funds are always provided to developing countries. The conduct of globalization connects the process of cooperation too. Industrialized nations always help the poor countries due their international responsibilities. For instance: through the UN treaties these developed nations invest in health. Also, at the time of calamities provide funds and send humanitarian aids to the effected nations. Therefore, developing nations are benefited due to globalization.

Moreover, socially developing countries are benefited. Social connectivity online as well as offline gives chances to people of backward nations to have social interactions. This process of interaction gives the conduct of chances to the people of the globe to learn from one another. Also cultural, technological and social benefits have been gotten due to globalization. Hence, it pushes the development of developing nations.

Further more, globalization enables the developing countries to export goods to international market. The conduct of free trade agreements of free barriers and open borders enables developing countries to export its goods to worldwide. This conduct helps the progressing nations to boost their economies and every sector. Moreover, these developing countries sell the products in international market.

This help profoundly. Therefore, globalization provides merits to developing nations.

Moreover, scholarships are provided to developing nations by developed nations. Developed countries every year provide number of scholarships to progressing countries so as to help the developing nations to improve educational literacy.
Moreover, these scholarships are always provided from great developed nations. The only motive behind scholarships to promote education in the progressing countries.
Thus, globalization benefited developing countries.

Further, technology
is always promoted due to globalization. The conduct of globalization enables the developed nations to share technology for defense and developmental purposes.

Besides, defense the 'conduct of technology is promoted for economical, educational and social purposes as well. This conduct of sharing technology become possible due to the conduct of globalization. Thus, globalization is a sort of blessing for developing countries.

Further more, a case study of BARRICK mining company 2022. This respective company signed agreement with Pakistan's Govt. in 2022. The agreement was produced on the Reko Diq project Baluchistan. which is one of the largest gold-silver projects. BARRICK will take 50%. Baluchistan be given 15% and federal will get 25%. Getting 40% resources without the help of BARRICK for Pakistan is for cry. Thus, due to the conduct of globalization BARRICK helps Pakistan to get benefits.

on the other hand,

Critics say that developed nations benefited more than developing. The stance is entirely illogical and weak. Developed nations get lesser than developing because all the works have ^{been} done by developed nations. For instance: developed nations spend on technology, roads, airports, minings, and sea ports to make routes for goods or recover resources. The developing nations just enjoys the outcomes of their projects. Therefore, developing nations are more benefited from globalization than developed countries.

To sum up, developed countries have contributed and work harder than developing countries. Also, developed nations produced aspects for the development and facilities of every individual. In fact, both the parties get advantages from the conduct of globalization but developing nations are benefited more than developed. Moreover, the conduct of

should be promoted more so as to help every person to get benefits. Further, the world super powers should contribute to spread the most tremendous conduct of globalization. Leaders should lessen the barriers on the way of connectivity of trade.
Also, online cyber crime, misinformation and hybrid warfare must be scolded unitedly for the peaceful co-existence in diversity. Further more, the international trade should be allowed in every region for the improvement of human lives. Thus, developing countries have been getting benefits from the conduct of globalization since its inception.
