

Precis 2004

Title: Man's Mastery of Personal and Relationship Skills

indent the 1st line

Man wants to conquer social relations with personal skills while compromising his true self. He needs to strengthen his roots and master himself first.

~~Because without self-independence, control, and liking he cannot build relationship skills with others. He might achieve some success in good times with his skills but will stumble again in his bad times due to lack of strong grounds.~~

rephrase this sentence

Relations are based on man's true nature instead of superficial learned techniques, others can sense trickery and man will lose his interdependence. But the skills which emerge naturally from an independent character, ^{enables him to} it makes man able to follow his own principles to build effective relationships with other people.

this sentence is too long when the sentence is long it loses its essence and meaning be precise and to the point main idea is picked and discussed be precis to the point

need improvement in expression 6/20

Total Wordcount: 346

~~Required: 115~~

Given: 111