

Television commercials depict utopic situations. These commercials are different from real life experiences, which make them prone to mocking. Some commercials show situations that are widely different from real matrimonial life experiences. The reason behind this is the lack of knowledge of producers about real life situations. Due to this, these advertisements are unable to promote the products. The large number of viewers may be reason that producers keep on producing these advertisements. These are viewed as a source of laughter or during switching of channels.

TITLE: Disparity between Real Life Experiences and Television Commercials

Indent the paragraph.

Do not include examples in precis. Just give their gist without specifying details.

Subject verb disagreement found.