Affection Towards Children.

Modern Educational theorists not believing with engaging children. liking and treating children like pets is not the right way to treat with them. without damaging their psyche. Not harming psychologically teaching children multiple things and getting desirable response is the art of teaching.

Overburden teachers cannot give the required attention to the child. Child negative and positive personality traits are designed by a teacher's likeness and affection towards them. Every child need is different while treating with them and a right way of treating them can bring positive changes in their lives.
