

Gender equality: A Popular Slogan

Outline:

1) Introduction

Thesis statement: Gender equality has become the popular slogan due to economic, social, political, psychological and environmental inequalities faced by women. However, consistency in the repetition of slogan has reaped many results.

2) How Gender equality became popular slogan

3) Social challenges faced by women

- a) Gender specific roles defined by society
- b) No access to quality education
- c) Misinterpretation of religion towards women
- d) child marriages

4) Economic challenges faced by women

- a) Less employment opportunities for women
- b) Disparity in salaries and top positions in organization taken by men
- c) Gender stereotypes regarding specific jobs (Sexual Harassment at work)

5) Psychological hurdles faced by women

- a) Gender based violence
- b) Post-partum depression
- c) No access to low quality health facilities

6) Political hurdles faced by women

- a) In some areas women prohibited from voting
- b) less small share in legislative executive and judicial role

Consequences of repetition of slogan

- a) UN Declared Women's day
(International Women day - 8th March)
- b) Benazir Butto as first prime Minister of Pakistan
- c) Elimination of Ghalk Act
- d) Founding mother, contribution of women in Pri making of Pakistan's constitution
- e) Child Marriage Act
- f) Domestic violence Bill.

Conclusion:

←—————→

"The Reward of our work is not what we get but what we become." (Paulo Coelho). It is the famous quote by famous writer which depicts the popular slogan of gender equality. Due this popular slogan women are now much informed about their rights. They are well aware of the fact what to bear and what to take stand against injustice. This has become popular slogan as women are facing multiple challenges at economic front like less equal opportunities in term of salary and ^{less} appointment at top managerial positions due to social deprivation. Furthermore, other psychological barriers faced by women are gender based violence, post-partum depression and ^{they have} no access to quality health facilities.

Moreover, Political hurdles are adding fuel to fire in term of gender inequality. (~~Women~~) Women have less participation in decision making position like vote casting, and legislative, executive and judicial fronts. However, the consistency of the slogan has reaped many benefits, as women participation in important key positions, are being considered. As UN declared international women's day and different laws have been passed in favour of women rights in Pakistan. Hence, Gender equality has become popular slogan due to economic, social, political, psychological and environmental inequalities faced by women. However, consistency in the repetition of the slogan has reaped many results.