Title: Impractical Television Commercials

Television commercials are beyond realism. The producers present idealized people in unrealistic situations. For instance, a footballer starts scoring after drinking an energy bottle, a groom's father does not hug him because he did not use shampoo, and a busy manager leaves the meeting for his favourite cookies. Similarly, they portray the relation between male and female is that is quagmire in real life.

A wife panics that her husband's shirt is dirty and she is in tension that her husband does not like her coffee. However, the makers do not know that the viewers irritate from these advertisements. In fact, mostly these advertisements are watched to laugh at.
