

→ Developing countries must be able to take the benefits of international trade

Outlines

1- Introduction

Thesis statement: Benefits of international trade for any developing country is crucial for its well-being. Ability to take the benefits of international trade leads to economic growth that, in turn, causes development. However, increase in the ability to take international trade need some important steps that can boost its economic growth.

2- Overview of beneficial international trade for developing countries.

3- What benefits that get a developing country from international trade.

- a) A source of foreign currency to help overcome a savings gap.
- b) Falling prices for consumers in different goods and services.
- c) Increased employment opportunities.
- d) Moderation in technological development.
- e) Improvement in education and health sectors.
- f) Boosting income and standard of living.

4- Why developing nations must be able to take the benefits of international trade

- a) To maximize capability of trade.

b) Comparative advantages between two nations

- c) To increase the foreign relation
 - d) For Boosting GDP Ratio
 - e) Improvement ~~for~~ in Agricultural and industrial Sectors
 - f) To gain the per capita income.
 - g) Great balance in foreign exchange.
- 5- How can be improved the ability of international trade for gain benefits.
- a) Implimentation of modern technology in all sectors related to trade
 - b) All policies about trade must be elastic.
 - c) Proper balance between exports and imports
 - d) Exports goods should be Qualitative.

6- Conclusion