To ^{discover} Discover our hidden flaws, it is important to see what our enemies ^{talk about} say to us. Our friends often praise us to our ^{to please us} heart's content.

First, they ^{do not} see our flaw as flaws, or else they hold our sake so dear that they hide them with the thought of not hurting us Or ^{they} ignore our flaws ^{altogether}.

Against all this, our enemy gropes us well and finds our faults from every corner. Although ~~he~~ magnifies a small thing by enmity, ^{yet} ~~but~~ there is some truth in it. ^{Friends} Friend always
