

~~Mashal~~ Gender equality: A Popular Slogān

Outline:

1) Introduction

Outline is not self-explanatory

Thesis statement: Gender equality has become the popular slogan due to economic, social, political, psychological and environmental inequalities faced by women. [However, consistency in the repetition of slogan has reaped many results.] → clarify your meaning

2) How Gender equality became a popular slogan

3) Social challenges faced by women

- a) Gender specific roles defined by society
- b) Lack of access to quality education
- c) Misinterpretation of religion towards women

d) child marriages ^{SP}

4) Economic challenges faced by women

- a) Less employment opportunities for women
- b) Disparity in salaries and top positions in organization ~~is taken~~ by men
- c) Gender stereotypes regarding specific jobs (Sexual Harassment
This is a separate issue at work)

5) Psychological hurdles faced by women

- a) Gender based violence
- b) Post-partum depression
- c) Lack of access to low quality health facilities

6) Political hurdles faced by women

- a) In some areas women ^{are} prohibited from voting
- b) less small share in legislative executive and judicial roles

Consequences of repetition of Slogans

- a) UN Declared Women's day
(International Women day 8th March)
- b) Benazir Bhutto as first prime Minister of Pakistan
- c) Elimination of Ghale Act
- d) Founding mother, contribution of women in making of Pakistan's constitution
- e) Child Marriage Act
- f) Domestic violence Bill.

Conclusion:

← →

"The Reward of our work is not what we get but what we become." (Paulo Coelho). It is the famous quote by famous writer which depicts the popular slogan of gender equality. Due to this popular slogan women are now much informed about their rights. They are well aware of the fact what to bear and what to take stand against injustice. This has become popular slogan as women are facing multiple challenges at economic front like less equal opportunities in term of salary and less appointment at top managerial positions due to social deprivation. Furthermore, other psychological barriers faced by women are gender based violence, post-partum depression and ^{they have} no access to quality health facilities.

Moreover, Political hurdles are adding fuel to fire in terms of gender inequality. Women have less participation in decision making position like such as vote casting, and legislative, executive and judicial fronts. However, the consistency of the slogan has reaped many benefits, as women participation in important key positions, are being considered. As UN declared International women's day and different laws have been passed in favour of women rights in Pakistan. Hence, Gender equality has become popular slogan due to economic, social, political, psychological and environmental inequalities faced by women. However, consistency in the repetition of the slogan has reaped many results.

Too many spelling errors
Weak next draft for evaluation
Writing lack of clarity thought