Co. No.	Guzetita-biye:
	Introduction:
	Aristotle is one of the greates and influential Greek philosopher He classified the state on the basis of two basic principles i.e. qualitative and mantitative. Ant the governmence was of six types i.e. Monoaich, Tyrunny, acistocracy, Oliquely, polity and democracy. According to Aristotle, state is not state but is in continuous form of dynamics. It means that all the six forth of you states are interchangable and continuously changing from one form to another.

The critical analysis is to be discussed in detail. Add the pros and cons of this classification of —/-/-:bt state by giving subheadings Avistoble does not talk about tre differentiation of state and government.

State is an entity which is static while government is dynamic which changes with time to time. Asistotle signified domocracy as pervensive form of government, but modern political scientists regards democracy as a best form of government.
And Aristotle, gue the idea of multiple forse of governance which is difficult to apply
