Essay:

The socio-economic and legal history of women is gloomy. In the medieval history, women were considered as the private property of men. When the concept of progeny was developed, men realised the dignity of women. With passage of time, women got numerous rights. Now, they are mostly protected. However, in many areas across the world, women faces multiple issues of social, political and legal. As far as the social protection of women is concerned, legal actions as well as social actions, can protect them. But legal actions play a crucial role in women protection. However, social safety of women is well secured when legal loopholes are effectively addressed. Legal actions can protect women in numerous ways and means. Legal action can preserve the political representation of women. It brings women in the power politics dynamics. Constitutional guarantee of of fundamental rights is also possible with the help of legal actions. Educational rights and economic interests are also secured by legal actions. Safety and security of women can be developed. And, the mindset of society is also changed when legal actions are taken for the protection of the women. Conversely, many believe that legal actions alone cannot produce any effective outcome, without social protection of women. It is because society supports the culprits despite injustice to women. People pass derogatory remarks over the chastity of women without knowing the truth. Similarly, women are compelled to be silent which reduces the chances of reporting a harassment case. Prevailing system of patriarchy is another hurdle in the way of legal protection of women. Despite various hurdles, in the social protection of women, an effective and efficient legal system can protect them at large. For example, there is need of implementing women centric laws in letter and spirit. Easy mechanism of case reporting needs to be devised.
