

Essay

"It matters not what someone is born, but what they grow to be"

Outline

1) Introduction: Life is not defined by the circumstances a person is born in, but the efforts he makes to change his life matters a lot.

2) Explaining the Topic and Contextualizing the issue

3) It is True that It Matters not What Someone is Born, but What They Grow to be

3.1) A place where a person is born does not define his whole life

3.2) Man is architect of his own fate

3.3) Going through worst and getting to new heights matters a lot

3.4) Man is not defined by his circumstances, but the efforts + decisions he make.

3.5) Crises test the true mettle of man

3.6) Man is not born with purpose but he gives it

3.7) Birds are born in a little nest, but they travel the world

3.8) Man is born on earth, but he is to explore whole universe

3.9) If a person is born in poverty, if does not mean it is his destiny

3.10) Getting defeated is not important, how a person gets up matters a lot

3.11) Rise of Japan after the Second World War example not argument

3.12) Failure is not the end of life

3.13) Stars appear in darkness

3.14) Obama was born in a poor family but he became the first black President of the United States of America

3.15) Everyone is not supposed to be born with a silver spoon

3.16) Continuous struggle of a person matters a lot in life

4) Conclusion

Examples for Essay

- > Obama
- > Lincoln
- > Mandela
- > KFC -> (67 years)
- > The rise of Japanese people
- >

Not sufficient Example should be in every paragraph also what are the references?

This is example not argument

This is all from one perspective. Make more sub-heading attempt the topic from various angles.

"Be the product of your decisions not your circumstances"