Exercise 40Title: Benefits and Role of University Education.

Technical courses in universities not only make the youth active, but also they are societal necessity. This education doesn't produce leaders, philosophers and scientists but it also provides a solid foundation in specific field. Scientists may have innate qualities, but economists and engineers are shaped by the university experience. University education prepares youth for a promising future with a rational mindset, a determination to seek the truth and the ability to contribute effectively to society through intelligent planning. It trains individuals on how to work effectively and to excel in a particular subject area. (90/275)

Title: Development of Commerce and Toll Tax in Europe

The development of Commerce experienced many hurdles in the Middle East. Traders faced a lot of challenges before human settlement regarding the safety of materials but after modern technology transportation were safer in Western Countries. North European vendors had faced danger of transportation and a dearth of communication during trade with South European. After feudalism, this danger was further escalated. Therefore, the tax and toll system was introduced for the safety of goods. Despite of many hurdles, all Europe including manufacturing centers of the East and the West made money as well as made themselves prosperous. (90/275)

Title: Role of Insects in Environment and Human

Man has different behaviour regarding insects; for some, he wants to kill and for some, he wants to see. He killed those who were threats to his health like locusts, who eat whole crops, and Termites who destroyed numerous houses in seconds. But on the other side, he loves to see butterfly because of its beauty. So, man's living style also changed due to insects. But, insects are also useful in the protection of the environment like Ants. Insects are also helpful in determining the Earth's age which is nearly 400 million years according to Entomologists. Some insects have lessoned for mankind; they teach tolerance and order like Bees and Ants follow their respective communities' rule. Their communications link is also an art of intelligence. CSS 1987Title: Role of Human Brain in Science

The human brain has proved its importance in evaluating science because man achieves the evaluation process, conquers time and space, sees things at macro level, can hear inaudibly and many more. It has increased human sense upto a million times. Man triumphed brain like as nature succeeded during its manufacturing after many hit and trial methods. If, a man can use it in negative sense then he faces destruction because actual law still exist. The prerequisite for the right use of the mind is spiritual and moral thoughts, which help a man during the decision process.

PMS (KP 2018)Poverty: Character and Perception

Poverty polishes people morally as well as intellectually and such people take hard challenges. It is proven from history that poor people are strong, honest and truthful. They are happy with what they have. That's ^{why} poverty is respectable and misery is disgrace because beggars have no respect in the society. Therefore, the poor are happier than the rich. Although, people may think this but may not like to be among them.
