

A Trip to Cherokee

Last year writer had faced difficulty to choose a place for vacation. He wanted a exciting place for his holiday. His friend John suggested a trip to Cherokee, Oklahoma. They went off and visited a beautiful town called Qualla. Tourists attracts towards Qualla due to its beauty and culture. Language barrier was overcome by native man so they did stopping easily. Native man introduced himself as George. They were surprised by his fluent English. After chatting George invited them for lunch. George said to them he worked whole day during tour season. George said during off-peak time tribal mans use large bingo hall for different games to attracts tourists. Writer last destiny was art museum. He missed that trip and plan another trip.