

Topic: If women are not protected socially, can legal actions protect them?

Outline:

1) Introduction

Thesis Statement: Women Protection is the big challenge for a country. If women are not protected socially, then they can be protected by legal actions, and for this purpose legal system of a country should take steps to protect them.

2) Difference between socially and legal protection of women

3) Women can be protected by legal actions (Thesis)

a) By giving them legal representation in assemblies.

b) By introducing strict laws and punishment at work place

c) By passing Acts for the protection of women from old customs.

d) By giving them right to serve at national level

4) Women can not be protected by legal actions (Antithesis)

a) Already they have special seats in Assembly

- b) Laws are present against harassment
- c) Acts are passed against old customs like Ghag and Sura
- d) Already women are doing govt government jobs.

5) The only way for the protection of women is legal actions (synthesis)

a) Their representation in assemblies are very less, it must be increase.

b) Legally laws are present but only for teachers and banking women

The representation in Assemblies are nominal

c) Only elimination Act of Ghag and Sura is passed, other customs are still followed

d) They are in government jobs but not in high ranking jobs like ICG and in army

6) Conclusion.