Title: Private victory precedes public victory.

If one ^{wants} to germinate his ^{one's} social interaction, first he will work on himself and ^{it is} it's a very basic paradigm shift. If a person ^{does not} don't know his inner self, he shall never create good relation with others. One can never be interdependent, if his ^{one} thoughts/mind are not independent. The important thing in building a relation is character, not the thoughts. If a person's character is self explanatory, he will make good relation because it depends on inner thoughts. When ^{minds} free thoughts flourish in @ minds, then making correlations with people will also be easy and productive.
