The writer writes that last year he was in search of an alluring and delightful place to spend his holidays. His friend suggested Cherokee and they took a flight to Cherokee. They visited a mountainous town called Qualla Boundary. The place was a reflection of <sup>eighteenth</sup> century due to its lifestyle and tribal crafts. <sup>In spite</sup> of language differences, they still found gift shops with the help of locals. These shops comprised of ~~traditional~~ ~~war~~ ~~hats~~, ~~axes~~ and ~~tents~~. They met a middle-aged man, who spoke good english. He told them that the locals <sup>did not</sup> donot rely mainly on trade and for earning extra money, they <sup>participated</sup> participate in special events such as "Bingo Weekend", where <sup>were</sup> various kinds of games are played to earn good amount of money. Finally, before returning, they paid a visit to a museum where different ~~types~~ ~~of~~ arts were displayed.
