Quitting must not be an option

Quitting is not the solution to any problem. Life is full of adversaries for the person who wants to achieve his desired destination. There will be hurdles in the way of every big achievement. So, it depends upon the person either to quit or to strive for his achievement. The winner never opts quitting. The history is full of evidence of the successful people who chose to struggle over quitting. Henry Ford, the man who is believed to have revolutionized industrial production in the 20th century suffered many a loss in business. Failed businesses and bankruptcy did not discourage him from trying to build one of the most successful car companies in the world. Therefore, the road to success is challenging and full of obstacles, but the one who rises up against obstacle and continues the race forward, is the one who reaches the top.
