

Paragraph (for Grammar practice)

Some crucial points that would help combat the challenges faced by women in Pakistan:

Firstly, the government and stakeholders should prioritise the education of women in Pakistan and build new schools especially in rural areas. So that women of those areas can get education easily, this will open the door for other girls to get education. Education is the only way to involve <sup>women</sup> (girls) in the progress of the country. Also, provide job opportunities and safety for the (educated) girls.

Secondly, eradication of controversial norms and outdated rituals is very crucial. These norms promote forced marriages. If the discrimination of gender is eliminated in the society, this will automatically give confidence to girls to raise <sup>their</sup> voice for their rights.

Thirdly, gender equality and equity should be promoted. If there is harmony present between <sup>the</sup> opposite sexes, it will benefit our country.

So in a nutshell, our government should organise programmes and reform ~~the~~ syllabi (that promote gender) to eliminate gender biasness. If women get education and aware of their rights, they will not just ~~only~~ thrive personally but also contribute in the prosperity of the country.

Half of our population is women, so, if our women contribute in different <sup>economic</sup> fields of our country, that would cause greater impact on the economical condition of the country. When women <sup>are</sup> empowered they become agents of change, contributing to building more inclusive, prosperous and resilient nation. Therefore, women's empowerment is not only a socio-economic need or imperative.

but also a basic right of women that is key to achieving a more peaceful, prosperous world.

Women is the backbone of the country
