

PRECISE 2010

Title: Envy: A Fatal Disease

Envy is an ominous factor of ordinary humans. An envious person derives unhappiness from others' benefits rather than getting pleasure from his good things. Envy becomes a deadly thing without any cure. It incites one to question the blessings enjoyed by talented people due to their skills. However, an admiration can reduce it. The ordinary humans can reduce it through happiness but it restricts happiness. Moreover, it is asked that how one can be happy with envious feelings. It becomes possible by highlighting and curing one's causes of envy.