

Precis 2002

Title:

The significance of language

Man is Homo Sapiens, his official name, and homo Faber - the smith, the tool maker.

Upon reconciling these terms, loquacious, the one with talking ability came into being. This is the distinctive quality that separates him from chimpanzee. Without language, man seems like Yahoo of Gulliver's Travels, the smart and egocentric creature. Language helps man gather and disseminate knowledge, express thoughts, create ideas, and codify laws. Thus, language generates a civilization.

Total words = 190

Precis words = 69