4 Machiavelli's advices to Prince for Italian Unity

In his book, "The Prince" Machiavelli gave the advices to prince for development and maintenance of prince. These advices are following

- i Machiavelli elaborates the doctrine of Raison D'Etat "Eat"
- ii State is Sovereign, autonomous and non-religious
- iii A prince must combine the qualities of lion and fox
- iv Use double standard of morality
- v favour despotic rule
- vi Favour despotic rule
- vii Maintain strong Army
- viii He should win popularity of people
- ix Remain free from emotions
- x Separate politics from religion
- xi Human nature is low and ungrateful, so prince must consider

i Machiavelli elaborate the doctrine of Raison D'Etat

Raison D'Etat mean that the reason of state. It implies the policies for the power of state. According to him the action takes for the preservation of state must be self sufficient, preserving and well order to maintain the state. Ethics and morality do not mingled with the state. state must be self sufficient mean have strong army.

ii State is self sufficient Sovereign and non-religious

According to him the state has sovereignty and the prince too are not bound to any kinds of moral and ethics features. Prince is above from all religious practice. Church or any other religions cannot control the prince. Prince is not bound to act in boundaries of religion. He can do anything for preservation of state.

Add sayings of Machiavelli against your arguments

(ii) A Prince must Combine the qualities of lion and fox

According to him, a prince must have qualities of lion and fox. The qualities of fox is necessary so that prince can act and think how to achieve his goal in any situation. The qualities of lion for prince is also necessary so that he can use the force to achieve his goal. Both qualities is necessary and interlinked with each other so that prince must have force and use cunning techniques to achieve his goal.

(iv) Use double Standard of morality

The moral standard for the prince and the peoples are not same. The prince are not bound for the moral standard which are set for the society. He can use violence, bad manner for the preservation of state and power.

(v) Favoured despotic ruler

Michiavelli did not recommend the republic form of government because republic form of government require virtuous ethics and morality. According to him, Government is not made to punish the men because they do not follow God rules. It is produce because the men is insufficient. So the prince can use force and other means and power to stop excessive desire of the people.

vi Human nature is low, ungrateful, so prince must consider it.

Michiavelli views about human is that man is selfish, have endless desire, egoistic, ungrate and always want dominant over others. He advise to prince that prince must know about human nature and take every action to analyze the people because men is ungratefull.

Prince should try to win popularity of his people

He advise prince that prince must try to win the trust of his people. He advise him that he do not interfere the privial matters and respect customs and tradition. He could not keep eye on wife or womens of any man. He do not involve in property matters because no one can bear this.

viii

Separate politics from religion

Before Machiavelli, medieval political philosophers think that religion is ^{not} separate from the state. it is base of state but Machiavelli strongly show opposition to this thoughts. According to him, the only way for the well being of state is the pursuit of material life. Moral and religious consideration can not bind the prince.

ix Prince must be free from emotion prince should exploit emotion for the welfare of state. he should be cool and have calculated approach for the preservation of state. He must know that when and why he act like a beast for the development of state.

x Maintaining strong army for defence of state

He recommended constant military preparedness for the preservation of state. Prince should organize a strong army for security of state and also to meet any external and internal threat. The state should try to build his own independent faithful army and also try to give military training to every citizen.
