

PRECISE 2010

Title: Envy: A Fatal Disease

An ~~an~~ envious person derives unhappiness from others' benefits rather <sup>than</sup> getting pleasure from his good things. Envy becomes a deadly thing without any cure. It incites one to question the blessings enjoyed by talented people due to their skills. However, ~~an~~ admiration can reduce it. The ordinary humans can reduce it through happiness but it ~~is~~ restricts happiness. Moreover, it is asked that how one can be happy with envious feelings. It becomes possible by highlighting and curing one's causes of envy.

~~10~~
20

Idea is ok. Cohesion needs improvement.