Title:

The significance of language ✓

Man ^{no sense of this sentence} is Homo Sapiens, his official name, and homo Faber - the smith, the tool maker.

Upon reconciling these terms, Loguacious, the one with ^{write simple untwisted sentences} talking ability come into being. This is the distinctive quality that separates him from chimpanzee. Without language, man seems like Yahoo of Gulliver's Travels, the smart and egocentric creature. Language helps man gather and disseminate knowledge, express thoughts, create ideas, and codify laws. Thus, language generates a civilization.
