Q. 2 Make a précis of the following passage and suggest a suitable title.

(15+5=20)

Around four billion people have the opportunity to cast their votes in a series of major elections this year. However, the threat to democratic integrity posed by misinformation and disinformation looms large. An effective democracy relies on evidence-based discourse and informed citizens. Concern about the expected blizzard of election-related misinformation is warranted, given the capacity of false information to boost polarization and undermine trust in electoral processes.

Specifically, there is widespread worry about malign influence on voters, be it through conventional propaganda (including warmongering and xenophobic disinformation), unsubstantiated claims about candidates or AI-generated deepfakes (digitally altered visual media). Anti-democratic agents might also attack the electoral process directly, as was, for instance, seen in Spain in July last year, when malicious foreign actors set up an imitation of the Regional Government of Madrid's website just before an election to falsely claim that terrorists planned to attack polling stations.

Several mechanisms to protect the public against misinformation exist — from general educational interventions to specific attempts to counter misleading messages with evidence-based campaigns. But the deployment of these mechanisms requires the resolution of three issues by scholars and practitioners: recognition of the seriousness of the problem; acceptance that classifying information as false or misleading is often warranted; and an assurance that interventions against misinformation uphold democratic principles, including freedom of expression.

Misinformation: Threat to Democracy

Democratic process allows billion of people to cast their vote in series of elections held this year. But, the threat of misleading information was a major concern for the democratic integrity.

The use of deepfakes and other conventional propaganda can erode the trust of people on electoral process. Democratic integrity can be prevented through enlightenment of citizens against misleading information. Action should be take by recognizing the seriousness of the issue without disrupting the freedom of expression.

Enzo Ferrari, the legendary Italian car manufacturer and founder of the Ferrari sports car company, once famously said, "No one remembers who took second place." This quote emphasizes the competitive nature of sports and the focus on winning. However, the story of Yusuf Dikeç challenges this notion. Dikeç, a Turkish sport shooter, has become an iconic figure not because of his first-place wins, but due to his impressive and consistent performances that have often overshadowed those who finished ahead of him. Yusuf Dikeç began his shooting career at a young age and quickly rose through the ranks, gaining a reputation for his dedication and skill. Over the years, he has participated in numerous international competitions, earning a multitude of medals and accolades. Despite this, what stands out about Dikeç is not just the medals he has won, but the respect and admiration he has garnered from his peers and fans alike.

In several key competitions, Dikeç has finished in second or third place. Yet, these moments have often been more celebrated than the victories themselves. This phenomenon can be attributed to several factors. Firstly, Dikeç's sportsmanship and humility have made him a beloved figure in the sport. His ability to handle both victory and defeat with grace has set a standard for others to follow.

Secondly, Dikeç's performances have often been marked by extraordinary skill and determination, making his near-wins memorable events. For instance, during a world championship event, Dikeç's second-place finish was celebrated more than the winner's because of the incredible comeback he made during the competition. This display of perseverance captured the hearts of many and showcased the true spirit of sportsmanship.

Moreover, the media and public have played a significant role in highlighting Dikeç's achievements. Stories about his journey, challenges, and dedication to the sport have often overshadowed the narrative of who actually stood on the top podium. In essence, Yusuf Dikeç's career illustrates that sometimes, it is not the title but the journey and the person behind it that leaves a lasting impact.

While Enzo Ferrari's statement holds truth in many aspects of sports, Yusuf Dikeç's story is a testament to the fact that second place can sometimes be more memorable than first. His career reminds us that greatness is not only measured by victories but also by the respect and admiration earned along the way.
