

CSS 2014

Probably the only protection for contemporary man is to discover how to use his intelligence in the service of love and kindness. The training of human intelligence must include the simultaneous development of the empathic capacity. Only in this way can intelligence be made an instrument of social morality and responsibility — and thereby increase the chances of survival. The need to produce human beings with trained morally sensitive intelligence is essentially a challenge to educators and educational institutions. Traditionally, the realm of social morality was left to religion and the churches as guardians or custodians. But their failure to fulfill this responsibility and their yielding to the seductive lures of the men of wealth and power are documented by history of the last two thousand years and have now resulted in the irrelevant "God Is Dead" theological rhetoric. The more pragmatic men of power have had no time or inclination to deal with the fundamental problems of social morality. For them simplistic Machiavellianism must remain the guiding principle of their decisions — power is morality, morality is power. This oversimplification increases the chances of nuclear devastation. We must, therefore, hope that educators and educational institutions have the capacity, the commitment and the time to instill moral sensitivity as an integral part of the complex pattern of functional human intelligence. Some way must be found in the training of human beings to give them the assurance to love, the security to be kind and the integrity required for a functional empathy. (251 words)

Preci Waiting

The survival of a contemporary man lies in the use of his intelligence for kind behaviour.

Intelligence can be a tool of social responsibility by developing sympathetic behaviour. It is a challenge for educationists to train human beings about ethical intelligence. The circle of social morality remained to religious leaders, who failed to fulfill their responsibility and performing their tasks. This resulted in "God is Dead" theological rhetoric. Men with power give less intention to social morality which leads to nuclear devastation.

Educators are only the hope to instill moral characteristics.
