

Essay:

Nations do not die from invasions, they die from internal rottenness

1) Introduction

2) Importance of national unity and strength

3) Causes of the internal rottenness of a nation that leads to decay:

3a) Elite capture that leads to poor governance and corruption

3b) Lack of education and political awareness among masses

3c) Disintegrated society - divisions on the basis of race, ethnicity and language

3d) Discriminatory policies for minorities that leads to persecution of minorities

3e) Highly intolerant society - Religious intolerance

3f) Inadequate justice mechanism - Absence of the rule of law

3c) lack of self-reliant economic mechanism - dependency on aids/grants etc

4) Impact of internal rottenness on nations:

4a) Political violence among youth

4b) state of anarchy and lawlessness

4c) Evaporating public trust - democratic retreat

4d) Rising terrorism due to the void created by social unrest

5) Steps to treat internal rottenness by strengthening society:

5a) Promoting national unity and social cohesion by redressal of grievances of the masses

5b) Promoting education and imparting political awareness or civic sense

5c) Rights and duties of state and society must go hand-in-hand.

Ensuring
5d) ↑ farsighted leadership - Political stability of the tenure

6) Conclusion

DATE: ___/___/___

Thesis statement

As a matter of fact, nations do not always die from invasions. In fact, they die from internal rottennesses in the form of rampant corruption, mismanagement of resources and poor integration of society. These variables altogether put a considerable toll on the internal stability, security and peace. Therefore, true principles must be necessarily adopted to rectify the internal rottennesses and steer the nation towards the path of 'stability and security'.