Introduction:

Pakistan from becoming an Asian tiger in 2026 (Asian Bank report 2017) to on the verge of getting default, suffered terrible transitions. Sometimes, the country becomes the victim of internal failed policies and sometimes of external disasters. To address its all of past hurdles' results, the experts designed a road-map for improving its fractured economy and social image. By improving the country's sectors of tourism, agriculture, equilibrium of imports and exports and most importantly its foreign policy, Pakistan can put itself again on the track of progress and can see a remarkable transition of scattered economy into an emerging state.
