

Sample Practice:

1. He was hard up for money and was being pressed by his creditor?

• He had a short of money and lender was forcing him to pay return.

2. They acted in a manner that rendered them liable to prosecution.

They Their behaviour become the cause of prosecution.

3. The account the witness gave of the incident moved everyone that heard it to laughter.

• The witness gave the reason for the incident ~~made~~ made everyone to laughter.

4. His courage in the battle might without exaggeration be called lion-like.

His bravery in the battle might be considered lion-like.

- IV. Again, only
- V. Democratic culture and process should go hand in hand but which process and how is it related to democratic culture? This point is not touched thoroughly

Vibrant Media and Good Governance:

1. Sample:

Free and vibrant media are necessary for the functioning of political institutions and for improved societal conditions. Media consolidates the forces required for good governance and mitigates the influence of pressures that have been driving citizens away from democratic thinking. Governance involves the ways through which citizens and groups in a society voice their interests, media differences, and exercise their legal rights and obligations. Good governance encompasses greater participation by civil society in decision-making, instituting the rule of law, anti-corruption measures, transparency, poverty reduction, and human rights. The role of media in promoting good governance is clear. All aspects of good governance are facilitated by a strong and independent media landscape within a society. Vibrant media acts as a mediator between the ruler and the ruled. It helps in curbing corruption by promoting investigative journalism. Additionally, it promotes the rule of law in a state. Media provides right access to accurate and factual information. Through public awareness campaigns, media broadens perspectives on various societal issues. Media is the most important and crucial element in fostering sustainable economic development. By eliminating the menace of yellow journalism and providing structural and financial support to the media sector, it can effectively and efficiently participate in the progression of good governance in any society.

Rules for Writing a Paragraph:

- I. Start with a clear topic sentence.
- II. Ensure unity and coherence.
- III. Smooth transition between sentences and ideas within the paragraph.
- IV. Be concise and to the point.
- V. Ensure that the paragraph contributes to the overall thesis or main argument of the essay.

Free and vibrant media are necessary for good governance in societal conditions. Media consolidates the forces required for good governance. Governance involves the ways through which citizens and groups in a society voice their interests, mediate differences, and exercise their legal rights and obligations. Good governance encompasses greater participation by civil society in decision-making, instituting the rule of law, anti-corruption measures, transparency, poverty reduction, and human rights. The role of media in promoting good governance is and yo policym

effective practice
develop

2.

Vibrant media works as an improved body in a society by removing the anti-democratic thinking. And a good governance runs the system by promoting several factors including involvement of civil society in decision-making, instituting the rule of law, anti-corruption measures, poverty reduction, human rights etc. Vibrant media assists the government to improve the social condition in all factors by the through public awareness campaign. It also helps in curbing corruption by promoting investigative journalism. Providing the support to media in structural and financial perspective will foster the economic growth and will be the progressive element for good governance in any society.

Reci = Vibrant media and Good Governance.

Vibrant media functions as a improver political institution in a society by reducing the elements ~~the~~ which ~~bring~~ kept away the citizen from democratic thoughts. And the good governance promotes the civil society in decision making, instituting the rule of law, anti corruption measures, transparency, poverty reduction and human rights.

Vibrant media promotes the good governance by assisting in all the above factors and through the Public awareness Campaigns. Media also plays a vital role in economic ~~and~~ growth. By derating the corrupt media and providing the support can be ~~the~~ evidence ~~as a~~ for the Progress of country and a good governance in any society.