Comments: I did this exercise because I found it really hard to identify the types of essays. Due to this, I'm unable to do the selected topic heartedly – as I'm confused whether it is descriptive or other type. So, I did this exercise on following parameters,

Expository / Descriptive: Simple stance by examiner just follow it, no hard language used to make the statement universal; in some cases direct questions to WHAT, WHY, and HOW often asked; straightforward information about a topic is asked.

Literary: Extended form of Descriptive topics but with abstract statements; no two-sided statement (like contrast or compare); no clear direction is given so one has to use one's imagination to create relevant arguments.

Argumentative: Statement that seems biased; use of hard language (use of Must, Should, Only, etc) in statement to portray subjective statement as objective; in some cases there is comparison or contrast too.

- Correct me where I am wrong in identification. Also, guide me so I follow proper instructions for good, thanks.
