

Mention the full qs statement for proper evaluation. Without that these are just notes and cannot be awarded marks

Islamic Studies

Question:

Introduction:

1 Islam has granted significant human rights to women by accepting and acknowledging her personhood. Women were brutally treated by their men in Pre-Islamic era. They were deprived of even their basic rights to life and security. Islam acknowledged rights of women considering their vulnerabilities. They have been gifted with sanctity of life and property along with other basic rights. Women as wife was exploited in the name of "social norms and" she had to bear all humiliations silently. Islam has empowered wives with their basic rights by obliging men to acknowledge those rights without any violation of Islamic injunction. Despite Islamic laws and orders, men find ways to deny or deprive rights of women as their wives. Social norms and tool of patriarchy effects used

to make women accept their inferiority as divine decree and made
to accept all what their loved
witness demand.

Use elaborate and self
explanatory headings

Position of Women

i) Before Islam:

Pre-Islamic Arabia was dominated by Nomads and Bedouins. They did not respect women. even if they pay
had to providing rights to women.
women were treated as property.
They were buried alive or exchanged
as property especially after husband's death. Despite being married women
was at risk of being disrespected
and humiliated either by husband or
by other males of family.

ii) After Islam:

Do not use vague and
irrelevant headings

After the advent of Islam, deteriorated
position of women was improved.
Islam declared that

You all are created from Adam and Hawa, they were made
of clay, so no one is superior
to other

Islam has declared equality of men and women is most of rights. Women as wife has been bestowed with respect and honour. She has to be acknowledged as an individual to be respected by society and family. They have been given right to property, life, khula, mahr, mulla, trade and earn but within Islamic code of morality and modesty.

Rights of Women (wives) in Islam

Unlike women in Pre-Islamic Arabia, Islam has bestowed upon her all basic rights to let her lead an honourable life. Enumerated below are certain prominent rights gifted by Islam to wives in Islamic society.

i) Right to life:

Islam has "saved" women from being sacrificed for her husband on his death especially. It has made it haram upon Islamic society to let a woman lead a life of respect and honour even if she fears the death of her husband. Burying alive was a custom which Islam has declared null and void.

Add and highlight references/examples against these arguments

iii) Right to Property:

Women were treated as inheritance then as inheritors. They had no right to own property. It was considered unnecessary to grant her access to property. But Islam has empowered women as wife to own her share of property without hesitation.

Islam has allocated a fixed proportion of property for wife so as to grant her security in case of death of husband.

iii) Right to Mehr (Dowry):

Islam has introduced a sacred way of continuation of relations as Nikah. This halal relation is connected to payment of mehr not as mere dowry but as gift of marriage to woman which she has to accept. This right is not forgiven until wife leaves it willingly.

iv) Right to Trade and Earn:

Islam has empowered women to not only indulge in economic sphere of life but also support herself to earn, to meet her requirements. In addition to granting permission to earn, women is allowed to not spend her earnings on husband or family. Blames on the life our world is back of Khulja (K.A) the mother of all believers.

v) Right to dissolve Marriage (Khula):

Women are bound to continue the social relationship in case of humiliation or exploitation. She has been allowed to get khula, if not treated well with respect and dignity. She has been restored with right to dissolve marriage but with logical inclusion of gaps to settle if both spouses agree to continue to relation.

vi) Right to remarry:

Women in pre-Islamic Arabia had no choice left than to die on death of her husband, for the fact that she had to be free from exploitation in hands of men. But Islam has restored women the right to remarry if she gets divorced or becomes widow. In both cases women is allowed to remarry.

on her choice without social pressure.

How these rights are Denied.

Patriarchy finds its ways to exploit women by constructing social stereotypes to support patriarchal hegemony. Rights promised by Islam to women are intentionally denied by using social norms and customs to abstrain ^{wives} women from exercising them.

Wives are not allowed to go for khula. She is threatened of social isolation and humiliati^{on} in the name of modesty and dignity.

Men do not allow women to renay after divorce or death of husband to either continue claim on property and child or to ^{maintain} ~~maintain~~ his so called social ego before the circle of his nomenclature.

Conclusion

Add more arguments

Women as wife has been given respect and honour by Islam. She has been made responsible of her husband. She has been allowed to carry out business and to own property. Wives are no more

8
properties to be owned and sold by men
but a respectable individual to be paid. Hence Islam has bestowed wings
with all basic rights to lead
a life of respect and dignity.
Altho men enjoy their rights but still Islam has provided the rights
to women which are to granted
to them.

Improve the references and the
paper presentation part