Impacts Of Climate On Man

Cold weather is a blessing for hot countries and it makes positive effect on the people of those countries. Cold weather boosts the energy level of the people and makes people more efficient and progressive, but on the other hand, people of temperate regions are lazy and inefficient. They try to live life more comfortably without accepting any challenge than people of cold regions. On the contrary, intense cold weather also freezes the feeling of the people and their energies. It is naturally proved, weather conditions directly affect the human nature in every region of the world.
